6. Glosario de variables

Score

Numero de criterios cumplidos sobre el total de criterios con datos disponibles para ese ticker (ej. 3/3 si a esa accion solo le aplican 3 de los 4 criterios). El divisor puede variar entre acciones: no todos los mercados publican los mismos datos (ej. insider buying, ver mas abajo), asi que un 3/3 y un 3/4 no son directamente comparables en puntos brutos, solo en proporcion de aciertos.

P/E

Precio / Beneficio por accion (trailing). Cuantas veces el beneficio anual se paga por la accion. En esta tabla se compara contra el promedio DEL MISMO SECTOR (no el global), para no comparar por ejemplo un banco con una tecnologica. Como referencia general (varía mucho por sector): por debajo de 15 se suele considerar barato, entre 15 y 25 razonable, por encima de 25-30 caro / de alto crecimiento.

PEG

P/E dividido por el % de crecimiento esperado de beneficios. Por debajo de 1.5 sugiere que el precio no esta sobrepagando ese crecimiento; por debajo de 1 se suele considerar barato.

Crecim.

Crecimiento interanual esperado del beneficio por accion (EPS). Por encima del 15% se considera fuerte. De donde sale: es el campo 'earningsGrowth' del modulo financialData de Yahoo Finance, el mismo bloque de datos que agrega los precios objetivo y la recomendacion de analistas (ver 'Recomendacion' y 'Bancos' mas abajo). No es un calculo propio de este informe ni un dato verificado de forma independiente: es un CONSENSO construido por Yahoo a partir de las proyecciones de los analistas que cubren esa accion. Por eso depende directamente de cuantos analistas la cubran (ver columna/glosario '# Analistas'): con muchos analistas (grandes tecnologicas de EEUU) suele ser una cifra robusta y actualizada; con pocos o ningun analista (tipico en small/micro caps o acciones poco seguidas fuera de EEUU) puede estar desactualizada, basada en una sola estimacion, o directamente no existir (n/a). Si Yahoo no tenia cobertura suficiente, este informe intenta rellenarlo con Financial Modeling Prep (FMP) como respaldo opcional; en ese caso se marca '(via FMP)' junto a la cifra en la seccion de descripcion detallada. HORIZONTE TEMPORAL (importante, no es un reloj de 12 meses desde hoy): esta cifra compara el AÑO FISCAL de la empresa actual/proximo contra su año fiscal anterior. El año fiscal de una empresa NO tiene por que coincidir con el año natural: por ejemplo, el de Apple termina en septiembre, no en diciembre. Asi que 'crecimiento interanual' compara el año fiscal de ESA empresa consigo mismo el año fiscal anterior, sea cual sea su calendario - no necesariamente '2026 vs 2025' en sentido de año natural. Aviso: ni Yahoo ni yfinance documentan publicamente el detalle exacto de este campo concreto, asi que esto es la convencion mas probable, no una certeza verificada al 100%. Un 60% de crecimiento no significa lo mismo a 1 año fiscal que a 10: trata esta cifra siempre como una estimacion a ~1 año fiscal, nunca plurianual.

Insider buy

Si algun directivo o accionista relevante compro acciones con su propio dinero en los ultimos 90 dias. Fuente primaria: SEC EDGAR (comunicados Form 4 oficiales, gratis, solo cubre acciones que reportan a la SEC); si EDGAR no tiene el ticker o falla la consulta, se recurre a Yahoo Finance como respaldo. N/D significa que ninguna de las dos fuentes tiene el dato para ese ticker, algo habitual fuera de EEUU (esas empresas no presentan Form 4); en ese caso el criterio no cuenta ni a favor ni en contra en el score.

Rec

Recomendacion: consenso agregado de analistas de bancos y brokers que cubren la accion (Yahoo Finance recopila estas notas; si Yahoo no tiene cobertura, se intenta un respaldo opcional via Financial Modeling Prep, marcado como '(via FMP)'). Los valores posibles son CF, CN, NC y N/D (ver cada uno mas abajo en este glosario).

CF

= Compra Fuerte. Aparece en la columna 'Rec' cuando la mayoría de analistas recientes dan buy/strong buy sobre la accion.

CN

= Compra Neutral. Aparece en la columna 'Rec' cuando la mayoría de analistas recientes dan hold (ni comprar ni vender).

NC

= No Comprar. Aparece en la columna 'Rec' cuando la mayoría de analistas recientes dan underperform/sell.

Precio

Precio actual de la accion en el momento en que se genero ESTE informe (no un valor fijo ni anual): el screener corre varias veces al dia (ver workflows de GitHub Actions) y cada vez consulta precios en vivo. En cada moneda local del ticker (ver columna 'Pais' para contexto: USD para EEUU, EUR para Europa, KRW para Samsung, etc.), no convertido a una divisa comun, asi que no compares precios en bruto entre acciones de paises distintos.

P.OBJ

Precio objetivo medio segun el consenso de analistas (campo targetMeanPrice de Yahoo Finance, mismo modulo que 'Crecim.' y 'Rec'). Igual que esos campos, depende de la cobertura de analistas: mas fiable con mucha cobertura, mas ruidoso o ausente (n/d) con poca. NO es una prediccion propia de este informe. HORIZONTE TEMPORAL (importante, NO es 'hasta el 31 de diciembre' ni un reloj que arranca el dia de este informe): por convencion de Wall Street, un 'price target' es a ~12 MESES desde que ESE analista publico su nota - no desde hoy. Yahoo agrega los targets de varios analistas que publicaron sus notas en fechas distintas (uno hace 2 semanas, otro hace 3 meses), asi que 'P.Objetivo' es una media de estimaciones a ~12 meses desde momentos ligeramente distintos, no un plazo fijo idéntico para todas. En cualquier caso, nunca es una proyeccion a 5 o 10 años.

Potencial

Diferencia porcentual entre 'P.Objetivo' y 'Precio': cuanto subiria (o bajaria) la accion si alcanzase el precio objetivo de consenso EN ~12 MESES (ver horizonte temporal en 'P.Objetivo'). Positivo no garantiza subida real, es solo la distancia a la expectativa actual de los analistas a un año vista, con las mismas limitaciones de cobertura que 'P.Objetivo'.

Cap.

Capitalizacion bursatil (precio de la accion x numero de acciones en circulacion), segun Yahoo Finance. Se usa para clasificar una accion como 'pequeña capitalizacion' en la seccion 2 de este informe (por debajo de 2.000 millones de USD).

Analy

Numero de analistas de bancos/brokers que Yahoo Finance contabiliza cubriendo esa accion (campo numberOfAnalystOpinions). Cuantos menos analistas, menos fiables son 'Crecim.' y 'Rec': se basan en menos opiniones y se actualizan con menos frecuencia. n/d = Yahoo no reporta cobertura para ese ticker.

Calidad

Version simplificada del Piotroski F-Score: suma 4 señales de solidez financiera (rentabilidad, margen, apalancamiento y liquidez, detalladas en 'ROE', 'Margen operativo', 'Deuda/Patrimonio' y 'Liquidez' mas abajo). Igual que 'Score', se muestra como aciertos/aplicables porque no todas las acciones tienen los 4 datos disponibles. Evidencia: el estudio original de Piotroski (1976-1996) encontro que las acciones con F-Score alto batieron a las de F-Score bajo en, de media, unos 23 puntos porcentuales al año - PERO ese estudio aplicaba el F-Score solo a acciones YA baratas (value), no a todo el mercado; usado solo, el efecto es mucho mas debil. Por eso en este informe la Calidad NO se mezcla con el Score principal: se usa como criterio de DESEMPATE despues de 'Score' (ver rank_top en el codigo), asi refuerza el ranking de valor/crecimiento en vez de sustituirlo. Ademas, ningun factor de este tipo garantiza rendimiento futuro: su efecto historico varia por ciclo de mercado y tiende a debilitarse con el tiempo.

ROE

Return on Equity (retorno sobre el patrimonio neto): beneficio neto dividido entre el patrimonio de los accionistas. Mide que tan eficiente es la empresa generando beneficio con el capital que ya tiene, sin depender de mas deuda o mas emision de acciones. Por encima del 15% se considera bueno en este informe. Fuente: Yahoo Finance (financialData).

Margen operativo

Beneficio operativo dividido entre ingresos: que parte de cada venta se convierte en beneficio antes de intereses e impuestos. Varía mucho por sector (un supermercado y una empresa de software no son comparables), por eso se compara contra la media DEL MISMO SECTOR, igual que el P/E. Fuente: Yahoo Finance (financialData).

Deuda/Patrimonio

Deuda total dividida entre el patrimonio neto, en porcentaje (100 = la empresa debe tanto como vale su patrimonio). Por debajo de 100 se considera apalancamiento conservador en este informe: menos riesgo de que una subida de tipos de interes o una mala racha ahogue a la empresa. Fuente: Yahoo Finance (financialData).

Liquidez

Current ratio: activo corriente dividido entre pasivo corriente, es decir cuantas veces puede la empresa cubrir sus deudas de corto plazo con lo que tiene a mano. Por encima de 1.5 se considera comodo en este informe; por debajo de 1 significa que el activo corriente no llega a cubrir el pasivo corriente. Fuente: Yahoo Finance (financialData).

Cesta Trump trade

IMPORTANTE: esta cesta NO es el patrimonio personal de Donald Trump ni sale de ningun informe de activos declarado (esos informes publicos, cuando existen, son sobre todo inmuebles y negocios privados, no acciones cotizadas). Es una seleccion tematica de acciones que la prensa financiera (Goldman Sachs, Kiplinger, Bloomberg, Investing.com, entre otros) menciona repetidamente como beneficiarias o perjudicadas por politicas de su administracion: aranceles, gasto en defensa, desregulacion financiera, energia, cripto e inmigracion. Son tesis especulativas y muy sensibles a titulares y giros de politica: por ejemplo, GEO Group subio fuerte tras la eleccion por sus contratos de detencion con ICE y luego borro esas subidas cuando hubo backlash publico. Que una accion aparezca aqui no es una recomendacion de compra ni de venta en ningun sentido, solo documenta una narrativa de mercado.

F.Y.

Mes/año en que cierra el proximo año fiscal de la empresa (no siempre coincide con el año natural: Apple y Microsoft, por ejemplo, cierran en septiembre y junio respectivamente).
Util para saber cuando presentara sus resultados anuales completos.
